Creating Public Value: Strategic Management in Government ...

Over the past twenty years, scholars from both the Kennedy School of Government and Harvard Business School have worked with public sector executives to develop a concept of "strategy in the public sector". The symbol of this idea became a "strategic triangle", the purpose of which was to focus the attention of government managers on three complex issues they had to consider before committing themselves and their organizations to a particular course of action:

On Creating Public Value: What Business Might Learn from ...

We argued that just as the goal of private managers was to create private (economic) value, the goal of government agencies was to "create public (social) value.". To determine what constituted public value, and to act to produce it, we developed a concept of "strategy in the public sector.".

Creating Value in the Public Sector | Mark H. Moore

Public value describes the value that an organization contributes to society. The term was originally coined by Harvard professor Mark H. Moore who saw it as the equivalent of shareholder value in public management. Public value is supposed to provide managers with a notion of how entrepreneurial activity can contribute to the common good. Nowadays, public value is no longer limited to the public sector, but is used by all types of organization, including non-governmental organizations and priva
